Abstract

Abstract summarizes your work (project) and should not describe the project. Summarize every chapter by one sentence and put all those sentences here, and you might get a good abstract. A good abstract always fits within one page.

Preface

The preface explains the purpose and scope of the report (not the project) and its relations to other reports in the same program. It states to whom it is addressed and how it can be used.

Acknowledgments

Names of each person and organization that has contributed to the work appear in the Acknowledgments. Sometimes the nature of the contribution is described. For example, permission far the use of equipment, facilities and documents.
